

PREFACE

A REUNION OF INNOCENTS

This is a story about an unusual love that has linked Joanna and Daniel through lifetimes. Some have called it delusional, desperate and co-dependant. Others have called it divine, soulful, even spiritual. It's a story about soul mates and soul groups and the passion and purpose of dreams shared through the infinite and boundless, perhaps even concurrent, concept of time. In this lifetime, we have found ourselves living out certain eventualities of our past lives and other metaphysical influences that shape our ongoing relationship even as we continue to live very rich and separate lives this time around. This dual existence warps time and space and sometimes lands us in awkward situations, but never anything that we can't handle.

Over the past forty years the magnetic attraction between us has been palpable, but never defined or contained by marriage or any earthly construct. Joanna and Daniel have been very careful to not make this multi-dimensional consciousness threaten their current families, and a remarkable level of acceptance has been with those who know them intimately.

Whether you take our story as pure truth as it is intended and perhaps experience a moment of enlightenment... or pure fiction and just have a good laugh on us, we leave this up to you. Part of what we have discovered on our journey is that there is more than one reality and there is truth to be gained from all of them. Here then is our story, and our wish for those who read it is that they may know that commitment need not be tied to condition, qualification or ownership ...

and that love, truly undefined and pure at its core, can still exist in this cynical and hypercritical world. Through the telling of our story we have discovered that there's an uncanny virtue in following our intuitive imperatives. We're glad we did because the more we trusted each other and ourselves, the more flexible our reality became.
